#26 CODIFY THE RULE THAT TAXPAYERS CAN REQUEST EQUITABLE RELIEF UNDER IRC § 6015(f) ANY TIME BEFORE EXPIRATION OF THE PERIOD OF LIMITATIONS ON COLLECTION

Present Law

Under IRC § 6015, taxpayers may obtain relief from the joint and several liability that results from filing a joint federal income tax return. IRC § 6015 (b) and (c) provide for relief from an understatement of tax if certain conditions are met. Both subsections impose a two-year time limit for requesting relief, which begins when the IRS first takes collection action against the spouse seeking relief.

If relief is unavailable under IRC § 6015(b) or (c), subsection (f) provides for “equitable” relief from both understatements and underpayments. Unlike subsections (b) and (c), subsection (f) does not impose a two-year time limit for requesting relief. However, Treasury regulations impose a two-year time limit for requesting relief.97

In 2009, the Tax Court, in Lantz v. Commissioner, held that the regulation imposing the two-year limit for requesting equitable relief under IRC § 6015(f) is invalid. The IRS appealed Lantz and similar decisions, and three U.S. Courts of Appeals overturned the Tax Court’s decision and upheld the validity of the two-year limit.

In July 2011, the IRS changed its position and issued Notice 2011-70, which provides that taxpayers may request equitable relief within the IRC § 6502 period of limitation on collection or, for any credit or refund of tax, within the period of limitation imposed by IRC § 6511. Proposed Treasury regulations to remove the two-year deadline consistent with Notice 2011-70 were published on August 13, 2013 (RIN 1545-BK51, 78 Fed. Reg. 49242-01), and public comment on the proposed regulations was invited. Four comments were received. None opposed removing the two-year rule. To date, however, the proposed regulations to remove the two-year rule have not been finalized.

Reasons for Change

In codifying IRC § 6015, Congress placed a two-year time limit on claims made under subsections (b) and (c) but did not impose such a limit on claims made under subsection (f). In light of the differences in statutory language, the National Taxpayer Advocate believes Treasury erred in promulgating regulations that imposed a two-year time limit on claims made under subsection (f). In our view, the purpose of subsection (f) is to provide a fallback mechanism for innocent spouses to obtain relief who do not meet the requirements of subsection (b) or (c) without regard to time limitations, and the two-year time limit imposed by the IRS has prevented otherwise eligible innocent spouses from receiving relief. Although the IRS no longer imposes this two-year time limit and has published a notice to that effect, final regulations imposing the two-year time limit remain on the books, and the IRS could reimpose the two-year rule at any time.

---

Recommendation

Amend IRC § 6015(f) to provide that taxpayers may request equitable relief within the period of limitation on collection in IRC § 6502 or, for any credit or refund of tax, within the period of limitation in IRC § 6511.98